Fiction Fun! Reads The Bluest Eye by Toni Morrison

Friday, Nov. 22, 7:30 p.m. in the Guild Room. This was the first novel by the Nobel laureate, published in 1970 and scheduled for a reading in our group just a few days before she died on August 5. In the New Yorker, Emily Lordi said that she “wrote with relish” in The Bluest Eye “about the ‘funkiness of passion’ that erupts despite attempts at feminine respectability.” In the New York Times, John Leonard’s review at the time of publication spoke of “a prose so precise, so faithful to speech and so charged with pain and wonder that the novel becomes poetry . . . But ‘The Bluest Eye’ is also history, sociology, folklore, nightmare and music . . . Ms. Morrison’s angry sadness overwhelms.” Information = Christina Cox, 626.583.2765 or ccox@allsaints-pas.org.

Fiercely Incarnate: Gender Rebels in Scripture and Christian History

with Austen Hartke

From Adam to Joan of Arc; from Deborah to Origen of Alexandria — Christian history and scripture is full of gender-nonconforming people living out their faith. While the language we use to describe gender diversity has changed over time, many of the experiences of those who have intentionally stepped over the gender line resonate with us today. But, as we know, rebels aren't usually thought of fondly in their own time, so we'll also look into what the rabbis of Jesus' day said about bodies outside the binary, what Thomas Aquinas said about proper clothing, and what Plato might have borrowed from Genesis. Austen Hartke, graduate of Luther Seminary's Master of Arts program in Old Testament/Hebrew Bible Studies, author of Transforming: The Bible and the Lives of Transgender Christians and creator of the YouTube series Transgender and Christian, leads this inspiring forum. Come see what our spiritual ancestors can teach us about resistance, acceptance, authenticity, and hope!
