RE: Please Help People impacted by the Earthquakes in Turkey and Syria

Dear Members of Congress,

I write to you as your constituent and a person of faith to urge you to provide robust funding support towards disaster relief efforts following the deadly earthquakes in Turkey and Syria. I encourage you to authorize federal money for relief and to work collaboratively on an international scale. It is important that the United States continue to pledge to be financially generous to those that have been so harshly affected by these recent events, including refugees.

In addition, I urge you to call for a long-term investment strategy in systemic disaster relief at an international level. Such an investment would create a ready supply of funding, expertise, and disaster response teams to better address these kinds of tragedies in the future.

I encourage you to take a leadership role in this effort and help in shaping a sustained, international response during these catastrophic events. Thank you for your attention to this important issue.

Sincerely,
